THE JOPETNAH FOUNDATION

TJF at a glance

Building Whole Communities, One Life at a Time.

The Jopetnah Foundation is a nonprofit initiative being established in Uganda. It brings education, health, economic opportunity and environmental care together, because families do not face one problem at a time.

Our model: four pillars, one point of entry

Education & Youth Development
Learning and skills pathways for young people.

Health & Wellbeing
Community health, including the One Health Animal Health Initiative.

Poverty Alleviation & Livelihoods
Poverty alleviation and economic opportunity.

Environment & Community Development
Environmental care and community development.

Our first project: Read to Lead

Two community centres with libraries, in Pakele (Adjumani District) and Teopok (Omoro District), serving about 1,000 children and adults in all, roughly 500 at each. Land has been acquired at both sites, which were chosen for land availability, real need and local interest. Next step: community consultation, in local languages, once registration is complete.

Looking ahead

Our work begins in Uganda. As our model matures and the evidence supports it, TJF hopes to share what it learns with communities across East Africa and, in time, across the African continent. We will grow only as fast as our governance, safeguarding and results allow.

How we intend to work

Integrity · Community ownership · Transparency · Sustainability · Inclusion · Learning. Governance and evidence discipline from day one, not added later. Planned targets are kept separate from results actually measured.

Readiness roadmap (indicative, not a delivery timetable)

Stage 1 · Foundation
Continue registration, formalise governance, approve core controls, prepare programme designs.

Stage 2 · Readiness
Assess partners, confirm community priorities, define pilot plans, set up monitoring and safeguarding.

Stage 3 · Learn and grow
If resources and approvals allow, launch scoped pilots and publish verified updates.

Ways to contribute besides money

Technology, equipment, professional expertise, employee volunteering, research capacity, logistics, market access or mentorship. A partnership can start with “here is what our organisation is good at.”

Current status

TJF is in its founding stage and in the final stages of its legal registration as a Company Limited by Guarantee and NGO in Uganda, and its institutional systems are in progress. Programmes are in design or development unless stated otherwise. Online donations are not active. Please do not send funds to personal accounts or respond to unofficial payment requests. Approved policies are published at the website below.
