Who We Are

The Jopetnah Foundation is a founding-stage nonprofit dedicated to advancing education, health, livelihoods, and environmental resilience in underserved communities — treating the whole family, not a single issue, as our unit of change. We are affiliated with Jopetnah International Limited, an established Kampala-based conglomerate operating across 16 sectors since 2016, but govern and fund our work independently.

Why We Exist

Families rarely face one crisis at a time — a child's school fees, a parent's health, a household's income are often strained together. Most charitable giving addresses one of these in isolation. TJF was built to direct a single gift across all four, so support reaches a family the way its challenges actually arrive: together.

The Four Pillars

● Education

School fees, supplies, and youth development programs.

● Health

Community health outreach and basic care access.

● Livelihoods

Small-business seed funding and skills training.

● Environment

Water access and climate-smart community projects.

Our Approach

THE INTEGRATED MODEL

Rather than fund a single-issue program, TJF channels each gift through all four pillars for the same family or community — so one contribution can support a child's schooling, a parent's health, and a household's income at once. This is the mechanism behind our tagline: whole communities, not partial fixes.

Governance & Accountability

- Independent Board of Trustees providing fiduciary oversight
- Five governance documents — Constitution, Board Charter, Conflict of Interest, Whistleblower, and Safeguarding policies — reviewed, approved, and published in full
- Commitment to published annual impact reports and audited financials once operational

TJF publishes its full governance framework before requesting funding — available in full for due-diligence review on request.
