THE JOPETNAH FOUNDATION

Give in kind: a guide for donors

Building Whole Communities, One Life at a Time.

There are many ways to stand with a family.

Some people give money. Others give what is already in their hands, their skills, or their networks. At The Jopetnah Foundation, we believe both are sacred.

We are still in our founding days — carefully building systems, publishing our governance documents, and preparing to walk with families in Uganda through education, health, livelihoods, and the environment. Because we are starting with transparency and care, we welcome early partners who can offer in-kind support.

Your contribution does not have to be cash to change a life.

What In-Kind Giving Makes Possible

When a family is struggling, the missing piece is rarely only money. Sometimes it is a book that keeps a child learning. Sometimes it is medical supplies that stop a fever from becoming a tragedy. Sometimes it is tools, training, or a connection that turns empty hands into productive ones. Sometimes it is simply someone who believes enough to share what they already have.

Your in-kind gift becomes part of a larger, connected response — because we do not treat problems in isolation. What you give will be woven into the whole-family model we are building.

Ways You Can Give In-Kind

Education & Youth Development

- Books, learning materials, and school supplies
- Laptops, tablets, or digital devices for skills labs
- Mentorship time or curriculum support
- Library resources or reading programs

Health & Wellbeing

- Medical supplies, basic medicines, or first-aid kits
- Mosquito nets and malaria prevention materials
- Hygiene kits and nutrition support
- Professional time from health workers or counselors

Livelihoods & Skills

- Tools for farming, tailoring, carpentry, or small trades
- Training sessions or vocational expertise
- Business mentorship or financial literacy support
- Equipment that helps someone start earning

Environment & Community

- Seeds, farming tools, or climate-smart agriculture materials
- Water and sanitation supplies

- Support for tree-planting or clean-up initiatives
- Technical knowledge in sustainable practices

Foundational & Organizational Support

- Legal, accounting, or governance expertise
- Design, branding, or website help
- Technology tools and software access
- Meeting space, logistics, or professional networks

Even quiet, practical gifts matter deeply when they are given with intention.

Why This Matters Right Now

We are not yet a large organization with warehouses and complex systems. We are a small team with a clear conviction: families deserve to be helped as whole human beings, not as separate problems.

That is why early in-kind partners are so valuable. Your contribution helps us begin well — with integrity, care, and the real resources families need — before we scale.

You will know exactly how your gift is used. We are committed to transparency from the very beginning.

How Your In-Kind Gift Will Be Used

We do not collect items randomly. Every contribution is carefully matched to real family and community needs within our integrated model. We will:

- Communicate clearly about what is most useful at each stage
- Ensure proper documentation and accountability
- Share updates so you can see how your gift becomes part of a larger story
- Treat every contribution with respect and gratitude

Because we are still founding, we move with care. We would rather receive the right things at the right time than accumulate what cannot yet be used well.

How to Offer an In-Kind Gift

If something you have — a skill, a resource, a connection, or materials — could serve this work, we would be honored to hear from you.

Simply reach out and tell us what you feel led to offer. We will respond with clarity and gratitude.

Email: `thejopetnahfoundation@gmail.com` (interim address — will move to a dedicated domain email once live)

You do not have to give everything. You only have to give what is already in your hands.

Sometimes the most powerful gifts are the ones that cost money less than they cost care.

Thank you for considering walking with us in this quiet, practical, and deeply human way.

The Jopetnah Foundation — Building whole communities, one life at a time.